Your Story.

INDUStry Stories

a group of student researchers at UC Berkeley are documenting the journeys of aspiring and established high-tech Indian entrepreneurs in the Bay Area

Will you share your story?

Why? Because Indian entrepreneurs are an integral part of the spectacular success of Silicon Valley. Because your stories, your struggles, your start ups and downs, are a vital contemporary history waiting to be documented. Because here at UC Berkeley, we want to build a community archive of the Indian entrepreneur and for this we need your help.

How? We have a unique approach. We don't interview you. Instead, you pick a friend or family member to talk to about your experiences, we choose a location (even your home or office), we discuss possible questions, and then we schedule a recording session. We are simply facilitators: we suggest questions if necessary, but mostly we are there simply to record your conversation with your partner about your entrepreneurial journeys.
