Call for Submissions

91st Meridian, the online journal published by the International Writing Program at the University of Iowa, will be publishing a special issue focusing on contemporary South Asian literature in translation. The tentative publication date is March 2016.

Co-edited by Daisy Rockwell and Shabnam Nadiya, (who translate from Hindi and Bangla respectively), the special issue aims to include a mix of languages as well as genres. Fiction and non-fiction submissions should be 1,200 words or less. Poetry submissions should be 2-3 poems. The issue will focus on South Asian writing of the 20th and 21st century.

Send your previously unpublished translations as a single word document attachment. The document should be double-spaced, in 12 point, Times New Roman font. Your email should include a brief bio of the original author and affirm that you have obtained copyright permission for the translated work(s).

Please email us with submissions by January 15, 2016:
Shabnam Nadiya &lt;shabnam.nadiya@gmail.com&gt;
Daisy Rockwell &lt;daisy.rockwell@gmail.com&gt;