1. Mercy corps

   "Mercy Corps teams have reached flood-affected communities in Nepal's Nuwakot district and are beginning to distribute emergency food kits and hygiene supplies to families displaced by last week's catastrophic flash floods."

2. Nepal Red Cross Society

   "NRCS volunteers are installing a 5,000-litre water bladder in the Tallo Bidur area of Nuwakot. The facility will serve around 100 households, along with an additional 100 households who are currently renting accommodation after being displaced by the Rasuwa–Bhotekoshi flood."

   Nepal Red Cross Society's volunteers have supported the construction and operation of a tuín (cable crossing) connecting Indrayani Chaur in Bidur Municipality–1 with the Gumba area across the Trishuli River, facilitating safer and more accessible river crossings for local communities.

   In addition, NRCS volunteers have arranged tents to provide a temporary resting and waiting area for people using the tuín, further contributing to their safety and comfort during the crossing

3. All hands and hearts

   "Our teams are on the ground supporting displaced families, providing supplies for the respectful care of the deceased, and distributing generators and power equipment. We're also helping communities clean and disinfect homes and schools to prevent disease, mold, and contamination, and building shower facilities so families can hold onto some sense of dignity and stability in the middle of all this."

4. Actionaid

   "ActionAid Nepal is working alongside partners and local authorities to assess needs and help ensure that no one is left behind in the response and recovery effort."

5. CARE nepal

   CARE Nepal, in coordination with its Humanitarian Partnership Platform, provides relief support to flood-affected families of Duhun of Darchula district in far-western Nepal. The relief was distributed to 32 affected families of flood-affected Ward 2, Afare of Duhun Rural Municipality in coordination with HPP along with local partners NEEDS Nepal, CRDS Nepal and the Rural Municipality.

   The relief materials included cooking utensils, buckets, tarpaulins, hygiene kits, as well as necessary clothing items, among other things. Ward Chair Govinda Singh Dadal and Rural Municipality Vice Chair Shanti Bam were present during the distribution program.

6. Direct relief

   Direct Relief has sent 60 pallets of medical aid — 18.9 tons, $3.9 million in wholesale value — to hospital and mobile-team partners in Nepal's flood-affected districts, and disbursed $125,000 in emergency operating grants to three local organizations, following the Aug. 26 outburst flood that killed at least 1,451 people along the Bhote Koshi and Trishuli rivers.
